Faculty - Kenn Apel, PhD, CCC-SLP

Kenn Apel, PhD, CCC-SLP is Professor and Director of the School of Communication Science and Disorders at The Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL, and a Fellow of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. Over the last two decades, he has conducted research on spoken and written language and literacy abilities. Dr. Apel has authored and/or co-authored numerous peer-reviewed articles, books, book chapters, software programs, and an instructional curriculum. Currently, his research focuses on the underlying linguistic components that support the development of reading and spelling, including morphological awareness and orthographic processing. He is the former Editor-in-Chief for Language, Speech, and Hearing Services in the Schools (2007-2009) and has served as guest editor or associate editor for other professional journals.

Abstract

Students' academic, vocational, and social success hinges on their reading and writing abilities. This workshop takes an integrated look at two areas of literacy development: word-level reading and spelling. The relationship between language and reading and writing skills will be highlighted. Specific guidelines/suggestions will be offered for assessment, instruction, and remediation.

The mission of the New Jersey Speech-Language-Hearing Association (NJSHA) is to serve audiologists, speech-language pathologists, and speech, language or hearing scientists by providing resources, information, programs, and services that meet members' needs; promoting public awareness; and advocating for professional standards, legislation, and regulation necessary to provide the highest quality of care for the individuals they serve.

The International Dyslexia Association is a non-profit Scientific and Education organization for the study and treatment of children with specific language disability (dyslexia). The Association does not endorse any specific program; it supports efforts to provide individuals with dyslexia with appropriate instruction and to identify these individuals at an early age.
